CONSTRUCTION FABRICS MARKET WORTH US$ 2.26 BILLION ON FOCUS

Construction fabrics industry (PVC, PTFE, ETFE) applications in Tensile Architecture, Awnings & Canopies, Facades has a resounding growth across the world, especially in Middle East. The growth of the Construction Fabrics Market can be attributed to the increased demand for construction fabrics in tensile architecture, awnings & canopies, and facades applications across the globe.

Construction fabrics are polymer coated, high-performance, durable, and resilient architectural membrane materials which are finding increased usage in the building and construction Industry. Construction fabrics are made of high strength inner fabric or mesh onto which a protective polymer coating is applied on both the sides. This helps in resisting moisture, heat, and air transfer and safeguard the fabric from mechanical and chemical damage.

The growing use of carbon fibers will have a positive impact on the market and contribute to its growth significantly over the forecast period.

US $ 4 billion worth of GCC prefabricated building and structural steel market with an yearly growth rate of over 7% by 2022.

High strength coupled with low weight and volume are the vital features supporting the increasing sales of skeleton prefabricated building system. Some of the underlying drivers for the industry are identified as rising number of corporate offices or special economic zones, urbanization trend, rapid industrialization, developing infrastructure prospects in GCC, and of course the increasing real estate investments in this part of the world. The growth of prefabricated building system market is expected to be in-line with development of real estate and housing sector across the globe with high growth potential expected to come from Asia-Pacific and GCC region.

The global prefabricated buildings market valued US$90.1 billion in 2012. Asia-Pacific was the largest regional market, accounting for 49.3% of the global market.
